CONKLING AND THE PRESIDENT.

Both Ready for the Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator Conkling denies, through his organ here, that in his recent conference with President Garfield the latter intimated his intention to appoint Judge Robertson to any federal position in New York. The President says that he not only intimated his intention to appoint him to an important position, but that he mentioned other leading Republicans belonging to what is known as the anti-Conkling faction, that he proposed to appoint.

Conkling objected to giving those who were prominent anti-Grant men at Chicago important positions in the state, and suggested that the President allow his secretary of state to assign them to foreign appointments, thus intimating that Blaine should provide for them. Regarding himself as President, he made up his mind at once to fill several of the important federal offices in New York and to make selections.

The attitude assumed by Conkling he regards as entirely unwarranted. He does not intend to retrace his steps, but go forward, selecting such persons from New York and elsewhere as he thinks proper. He believes he will be sustained not only by the Senate but also by the country.

MODERN BANDITS.

NEW MEXICO RAIDED BY DESPERADOES.

The Militia Called Out.

DENVER, April 1.—The News Durango special says the whole section of country around Rio Arabia, New Mexico, is in a state of nervous excitement. Terror reigns supreme. The cause of the alarm is Ike Stockton and gang, who, with his brother Port, have for years been depredating through New Mexico and Texas, murdering, stealing, &c. Less than a month ago Port Stockton, whose headquarters were near Farmington, entered a saloon in that town, where a number of ranchmen were drinking, and, as customary, asked everybody to take a drink under penalty of being shot. On refusal, the ranchmen not complying, he drew a revolver, but was immediately shot and killed. Ike Stockton, hearing of this, collected a gang of six or seven desperadoes and started for Farmington with the avowed purpose of killing every man who was present when Port was killed. Since then they have been murdering ranchmen and cow boys, killing and stealing stock and defying the authorities. A Vigilance Committee was organized, but is powerless, the desperadoes being thoroughly acquainted with the country, well mounted, and having divided into three or four squads in order to evade them. Gov. Wallace has called out the militia and the country will be scoured until the desperadoes are run down.

THE FLOODS.

FOUR HUNDRED PEOPLE HOMELESS.

The Property Loss Estimated to be $175,000.

BISMARCK, Dakota, April 1.—The river has fallen three or four feet. About 250 people went over to Mandan on steamer Eclipse, today, but could not get within three miles of the town, because of the ice. Several persons from the ill-fated city came on the boat. The ice is about six feet deep all over the town and very solid. The Northern Pacific loses about 2500 railroad ties, timbers, etc., and but a few goods were saved. The flood was so sudden that the people were glad to get to the bluffs with clothing enough to keep them warm. More provisions will be sent over tomorrow. About four hundred people were rendered homeless, but the water has fallen so that many buildings are now out of the water. The total loss is estimated at from $150,000 to $175,000.

SIOUX CITY, April 1.—The Missouri river has made a further rise at this point during the past twenty-four hours of nearly six feet but it has fallen about two feet this evening. No portion of this city is overflowed, and there is little apprehension that any damage will be done at this point. There is no news of consequence from above today, the telegraph lines having been broken down by the flood. A train placed at the disposal of this city by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Company left here this morning for the inundated district in Dakota to render assistance.

MOLIN, Ill., April 1.—Yesterday the ice in the Mississippi parted just above this city, but did no damage. This morning a general break-up set in below the railroad bridge, between Rock Island and Davenport and played havoc on both sides of the river. It crushed and broke up the Keokuk Northern line dock and warehouse, crushed to kindling wood the Diamond Joe freight house and several cars lying on the track. The ice along the shore is piled up 18 to 40 feet.

THE TOWN OF GREEN ISLAND DESTROYED.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 1.—Specials to the Pioneer Press from Sioux City say the gorge broke at Yankton Wednesday, the water falling six feet per hour, and was receding slowly at last accounts. There is no loss of life, but the damage to property is estimated at $75,000, principally railroad and steamboat property. The town of Green Island, opposite Yankton, was entirely swept away Wednesday night, every building being broken and floated off by the ice, and one man was carried away on a floating house. The flood reached Vermillion, driving out the telegraph operator, since which nothing has been heard from there, though it is certain that the gorge holds there as no rise occurred at Elkpoint below there. The Vermillion ferry boat is a total loss. The water here is five feet below high water mark, and it is not probable that great damage will result here when the gorge gives way, as the ice will have a full run.

HARD TIMES FOR THE INHABITANTS.

CHICAGO, April 1.—The St. Paul Pioneer Press special from Bismarck says the frost of Wednesday night helped to solidify the gorge at Fort Lincoln. Thursday morning the water was at a standstill and the outlook for a full discouraging, field glasses showed no change in the situation, and at noon no flag of distress was visible; the plucky citizens, men, women and children, were staying at home. They had passed an uncomfortable night, but were not willing to desert the spot. With a few boats they are able to go where it is over the boat tops. Beside damage to furniture and stocks of goods, it is believed 100,000 railroad ties were washed away, involving a loss of $35,000 to the Northern Pacific Railway. Five men were rescued, who had taken refuge in the woods, by Major Poplen in a skiff. He also visited a collection of people opposite Fort Lincoln who were huddled in a single house that was high upon a sand bar and practically safe. The steamer Union was lying near by in a safe place. There is a fall of four feet at the gorge, and every appearance that for a mile up the river the ice sinks to the bottom and is a solid dam for that distance. If cool weather continues this dam will probably last for a week, and the channel possibly be turned in an easterly direction a mile from the old one. The power of the ice cakes that force their way into the woods is illustrated by the fact that they cut down cotton wood trees two feet in diameter. The steamer Eclipse arrived from Fort Buford, and is therefore safe and sound. There is no gorge above Bismarck.

FOREIGN.

Cutting down Expenses.

LONDON, April 2.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says the imperial civil list in respect to the gross expensive control of imperial palaces, will be reduced by several millions of roubles.

MORE TROUBLE IN THE TRANSVAAL.

DURBAN, April 1.—Persons from the Transvaal report that the Boers are looting the property of loyalists. It is stated that the Boer leaders in Meddelburg ignore Joubert and the conditions of peace, and warn refugees against returning. Many Transvaalers are returning hurriedly to Natal. There is great friction between the Boer leaders, and it is believed the peace is only temporary.

A CHANCE FOR THE ASSASSINS.

LONDON, April 1.—The Standard's correspondent at Vienna reports that the Emperors of Austria, Germany and Russia will probably meet at Ems in midsummer.

OLEOMARGARINE ABROAD.

LONDON, APRIL 1.—In the House of Commons, tonight, Sir Herbert Maxwell moved that steps be taken to insure that such of those compounds resembling butter imported from the United States as are harmless, shall only be sold under distinctive names, and that the importation and sale of those hurtful and dangerous to health be prohibited altogether.

Mr. Chamberlain, President of the Board of Trade, said the result of the motion would be the absolute prohibition of the importation of butter from other countries. There was no need for alarm on the part of the farmers, for there was not the slightest proof that the introduction of substitutes for butter had reduced the price of good butter. The evidence before them showed that some of these compounds were as wholesome as butter, and there was no proof that any of them were injurious to health. The motion was then negatived by a vote of 75 to 59.

LORD BEACONSFIELD IMPROVING.

LONDON, April 1.—Lord Beaconfield's physicians state that though there is still much to contend with, the crisis is past. He is able to take nourishment readily, has had a refreshing sleep and there is every hope of his recovery.

LONDON, April 1.—Lord Beaconsfield's improvement is still maintained. He has again slept well and taken refreshment several times. There is great necessity of rest. Straw has been laid in the street in front of his residence.

THE NIHILISTS IN DANGER.

BERLIN, April 1.—Herr Windhorst's motion requesting Prince Bismarck to endeavor to conclude an agreement with the Powers to undertake to impose penalties upon their own subjects and foreigners residing in their country, for assassination or attempting to assassinate heads of states, and for all public incitement to assassination, and that any foreigner guilty of assassination or attempt to assassinate, shall, on demand, be delivered up to the government of his native country, is unanimously approved by the Imperialists, German Conservatives, Centre National Liberals and Poles. Even the Progressists group, and the Secessionist group of the Liberals have decided to adhere to the motion in principle.

ANOTHER RAILWAY SMASHUP.

The Result of a Train Attempting to Pass Another on the Same Rails.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 1.—The Pioneer Press special from Fergus, Ill., gives an account of the accident on the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroad. A passenger train going north this forenoon ran into a delayed freight six miles north of Rathsay. The caboose took fire and one man was burned to death and six wounded as follows:—Killed Joseph Bingo, St. Paul. Injured—Oliver Sischtz, Waterloo, Iowa; Martin Walker, residence unknown, thigh broken and other injuries; Rev. H. Young, of Reed's Landing, head, hands, back and face cut, and legs badly burned; Henry Hoppbell, of Hastings, thigh and shoulder fractured, and head and face cut; Edward Gallagher, side, back and face cut; Angus McClelland, of Reubion, slightly injured. A special with Dr. Halton was immediately dispatched from here.

The injured were brought in and quartered at Bell's Hotel. Notwithstanding the fact that this accident occurred yesterday in the forenoon, and full particulars were filed for the press last night the foregoing meagre account was all that could be got over the wire, the line being held for train orders. It is reported here that several passengers reported injured are in a precarious condition.

A LOCOMOTIVE EXPLODED.

TYRONE, Pa., April 1.—Locomotive No. 148, attached to the Clearfield passenger train, exploded at this place this morning, shattering everything in the vicinity of the new depot. The Ward House and Ray's tannery were badly damaged and windows broken for two squares distant. Mr. Williams, of Orbisana, had an ear cut off and was otherwise badly hurt. Henry Haupt, telegraph operator, had both legs badly bruised. Mr. Test, of Phillipsburg, was badly cut about the face, and Michael Bowlinger, of Tyrone, had his face badly cut. A great many others received less serious injuries. The engineer of the engine escaped unharmed.

A DANGEROUS NECKLACE.

WILKESBARRE, April 1.—This forenoon Wm. Hinsley was making dynamite cartridges at Heidelberg Slope, near Pleasant Valley and had a string of them hung around his neck, when, from some unknown cause, the cartridges exploded, literally tearing Hinsley to pieces. One of his arms could not be found when the fragments of the body were collected. The engineer was seriously injured, the house demolished and the machinery and hoisting apparatus destroyed, causing a heavy loss.

SNOW IN THE WEST.

CHICAGO, April 2.—There was a general snow storm in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, with a high gale. The snow-fall in the Lake Superior region was very heavy. In this city it was light.

SAVING THE CZAR.

Mr. B. L. McVicker, secretary of the Chicago Board of Health, was an unknowing instrument in saving the life of the Emperor Alexander, nearly 14 years ago, in Paris. It was in June, 1867, when the Emperor of Russia, the Emperor of Germany, Bismarck, and other distinguished personages were in Paris, and Emperor Napoleon III. of France had arranged a grand review at Long-champs. After the review Mr. McVickar and a friend went with an immense crowd of other people to the road by which the carriages of the royal people would return to Paris, in order to get a closer view of them. The Americans worked their way through the crowd to the front. Just as the carriages were approaching the place where the Americans stood, a man attempted to push through between McVickar and his friend. The Americans resisted this effort to deprive them of their good place, and kept the man back until the carriage in which rode Napoleon, Alexander, and the latter's two sons had just passed, when the man succeeded, by stooping down and working his way between the legs of the two friends, in getting in front of them, when he immediately fired his revolver at the Emperor's carriage, the bullet striking a horse of one of the guards. He fired again, and the barrel of his revolver burst, and he was seized. Mr. McVickar's resistance doubtless prevented his getting a successful shot. Mr. McVickar received the thanks of the Emperor through the Russian Minister at Paris. On the 8th of June there was a celebration in Paris over the escape of the Emperor, and Mr. McVickar wrote a poem on that occasion entitled "The Emperor's Escape."—[Chicago Times.

One of the curiosities of the census is the return which Chief Numana, the census supervisor in Nevada to collect statistics of the aboriginal tribes, has prepared. His enumerators were all Indians, and a single sheet of blank paper and a pencil comprised their equipment. Upon this paper the Indian made a circle to represent a wigwam or camp, and within he placed figures to represent the number of persons in a family, the squaws being distinguished by lines representing gowns and smaller figures denoting children of various sizes. The chief made up his report from these sheets by taking a number of willow sticks of various lengths to denote adults and children of different sizes, notching those representing females, and sending the sticks in bundles to the census office. This method, though rude, has served to furnish an accurate census of the Piutes.

THE CRAB.

Nature has done much for this lively and energetic crustacean; among other favors, it has conferred on him a complete suit of armor. He not only carries his house but his castle on his back; he is invariably armed cap-a-pie, so that enemies cannot break in and steal his life away, and he may indulge his naturally warlike temper without danger of extermination. He is the knight-errant of the watery world, and backs down from no danger; his nearest imitation of a retreat being to slide off sideways. But this comfort of a coat of mail has its disadvantages; the crab grows, but his castle does not. There comes a time in the life of every crab, and it comes very often, at least once a year, and perhaps much oftener, when he has not only grown too big for his boots, but too large for his iron skin, when he "must swell and lust," when the very weight of his best protection, his chest protector, crushes him, and he is cabined, cribbed, confined, within a limit too small for his swelling proportions. In plain words, he finds himself in a very tight place, and many a less enterprising animal would give up the struggle, and perish like the old time state criminal who stood mute at his trial under the peine dure et forte. But not so the crab, who is always equal to the occasion, whatever the occasion may be. He does not cut his coat to his cloth, he does not shrink within himself, nor give up hope of expansion, nor surrender the confidence of a grander and broader future—he simply sheds that skin. He moves from that house, he leaves his armour for a smaller man; he casts off the past and all its surroundings, like a corner-grocery millionaire when he enters Fifth avenue as a leader of society.—[Appleton's Journal.

EXTRACTS FROM "BY THE TIBER."

"One disillusion caused Valeria great disappointment. She had fancied that, in foreign countries, Americans stood by each other, and that they would have a certain union, which did not mean intimacy, indeed, but which would give to each a sense of protection, and at need, the strength of the whole. It was not so. The greater number of those of whom she knew much, either personally or from report, were divided by petty jealousies and dissensions, and seemed to rejoice in each other's misfortunes. They struggled and intrigued for fine acquaintances, and, when they were successful in obtaining them, assumed a state that was pitifully ridiculous. The English had more dignity. They were proud of being English. Americans were ashamed of being American, and longed to be European, and to efface their nationality as much as possible. Of course this was not true of all; but it was true of all whom she saw much of. There were finer souls, who honored their country and themselves."

"Reason is always imperfect in judging character, since the logic of the Creator overpasses the logic of schools, and our thought may not grasp the premises of a human soul."

"With the most of us a good person means one who is good to us."

"The chief fault of some people in society is the believing that it is everybody's Grand Mogul, just as it is their own. And another fault is that it will pretend to be good, instead of being content to be only pretty."

"Society isn't a father confessor. All it asks is, 'Are your boots blacked?' Vulgarity can come in, and vice can come in, and the devil is welcome; but they must black their boots. It is de rigueur."

"It did not occur to her that there is no publicity so great as that to be feared from the tongues of a few malicious and tattling women."

"There is nothing like the frankness and clearness of people who have a great deal of mischief to conceal. They are always prepared. It is only honest people who can afford to refuse to give reasons to everybody for their conduct."

"She had little confidence in women, not believing them capable of justice. They might have noble and generous impulses and tender hearts, but their principles were, in her opinion, very sketchy and pliable. She would never have given to women the ballot, the law, nor the sole direction of any institution whatever where they would have unquestioned power over others."

"Her only divisions of women were into those who listen and peep at keyholes and those who do not; and the subdivision of those who do not into women who are blackheads and women who have brains. Her ideal woman was an intellectual one, who resolutely minded her own business."

"As for those men whom she did not find either odious or indifferent, she regarded them with a somewhat ideal homage. In the shadow of a serious, strong, broad-shouldered man she sat down as contented as a lamb in the shade of a rock at noon day. She had the most tranquil confidence in their power to slay giants, lions and dragons."

If you ask at a London grocer's for crackers, he will inform you with mild contempt that they do not keep July the 4th in England, and it is only after an elaborate explanation that you can buy them under the name of biscuits—while biscuits in the American definition are unknown. "Canned" fruit or canned anything is not understood; your request must be for "tinned" fruit or fish, and at the baker's "graham" bread is unknown, all that is not pure white is "brown," and pies without top crusts are "tarts."

AN ABSURD STORY REFUTED.

ITS SINGULAR ORIGIN.

The story that the Baroness Burdett-Coutts-Ashfield followed Mario wherever he went is thus explained in the Musical News of New York by Mr. Harrison Millard:—

It was not the Baroness Burdett-Coutts who followed Mario while in this country, but a relative of hers, who was also quite wealthy. It was true that she always occupied the stage or proscenium box all alone, keeping in the rear or concealed by curtains excepting when Mario came on; then she would come to the front, apparently wrapped in delight while listening to the delicious melody of Mario's voice. She denied being in love with him, but asserted that her only pleasure in this world consisted in listening to his charming voice and that being wealthy she had a right to enjoy herself and spend her money in the way that best pleased her. A footman in livery always escorted her to her carriage after the performance was over.

At one time Mario and Grisi and the Covent Garden troupe were going to sing in Dublin, and in crossing the Irish Channel everybody was pleased to learn that their bete noir was not on board. After the boat had started, however, a fast little tug overhauled them and Miss Coutts was duly transferred on board. Grisi was furious, and was with difficulty restrained from laying violent hands upon her and tossing her overboard. The trio were never on friendly terms, and Mario would never "have gladly exchanged his lyric honors to become the husband of the rich English woman, etc.," as stated in the Times.

Some years after the American tour, she was so severely burned by the igniting of the lace curtains in her room and her attempting to extinguish the fire that her life was despaired of, and both Grisi and Mario visited her, and she had the satisfaction of pressing the hand of her adored tenore, only a few hours before her death.

A relic of barbarism in London is seen in the milk women who trudge wearily from door to door with a couple of pails swung from a sort of horse yoke passing over their shoulders. To any one accustomed to our rattling little wagons and shining cans, the sight is a disagreeable one.

The meanest man lives in Audubon county, Mo. He pleaded in a breach-of-promise suit that a contract entered into on Sunday night was not binding. He won his case, but his defence will have a most discouraging effect upon Sunday courtship.

THE RED MASK.

A Mocking Demon Stalking Abroad,—All Danger from it Averted by a Skillful Physician.

There are for many reasons few diseases more to be dreaded than Erysipelas, and it has, not inaptly, been termed "St. Anthony's Fire." There is no disease which so completely deforms and disfigures the visage of the patient; and it may fairly be compared to a red mask thrown by a mocking demon over the human face. It is almost as dangerous as it is repulsive. Arising from a variety of causes, running its course with pain—it often ends suddenly in death. The old treatment consisted of blood-letting and the use of strong drastric purgatives. The substance of the enlightened modern treatment is all contained in Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." Use this, and you have taken the essential total of all the best physicians in the land could prescribe for Erysipelas. A case in point. Mr. S. B. Carpenter, of Grandville, N. Y., writes that he had for some time been afflicted with this disease in both legs, and has regained his health by the sole use of "Favorite Remedy." Other cases might be cited, did space permit. "Favorite Remedy" is also sure in its action in all other diseases of the blood. Ask your druggist for it, or address the Proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

The Journal is a large 32 column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from this city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12½ cents a week, payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the WHOLE YEAR is paid STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter, are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer. Funeral notices 50 cents each. Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both the News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

And now word comes from Washington that in the future the President does not intend to make nominations without previous consultation with the head of the department to which they belong. The record of winter cruising for the revenue steamer Samuel Dexter, Capt. Irish, shows that she cruised 5,490 miles, that the number of vessels boarded was 547, spoken 34, and assisted 42. The value of vessels and cargoes assisted was over $500,000.00. This is a pretty good record and speaks well of the vigilance and enterprise of her commander.

Boston Transcript:—Postmaster General James is said to be in favor of cheap postage. The first reform needed is the absolute abolition of the franking privilege. Let the departments pay their postage, as they pay their telegraph and express bills, and charge it to expense account. In this way we should put the Postoffice Department on a business basis, and find out just where it stands. With this reform it would probably be found practicable to establish a one-cent rate in cities and a two-cent rate the country over—not without.

Certain students of Syracuse university recently disported themselves by dragging one of their fellows into the country, shaving his head, gagging him and tying him to a tree. Prof. French, the acting chancellor, procured the arraignment of four of the ringleaders in the sport in the police court, and the rest of the students are as mad about it as if brutal assaults were somehow part of their scholastic privileges. Prof. French's is the only right way to deal with this curious notion, and he is the right man to apply the remedy, as the boys will quickly find out.

Capt. A. B. Chadsey, the Prohibition candidate for Lieut. Governor, has written a letter declining the honor. Like most men of his party who put principles above cliques and schemes for personal advancement he sees that a separate ticket is not in the interest of temperance at the present time. We hear that a party of bolters from the regular organization are to put a new ticket in the field. But even then the cause is such a good one that it cannot be killed outright. One thing is certain:—if we have prohibition in Rhode Island it will not be through the influence of such advocates, but of those whom they denounce as less zealous than themselves.

The Democrats are getting anxious to secure the confirmation of Robertson as Collector of the port at New York. They see "millions in it" so far as party capital is concerned and are disposed to do all they can to heighten the disgust of Senator Conkling who represents more than nine-tenths of the Republicans of the Empire state. They know that if he and his friends can be alienated from the support of the administration, New York will be easily won to the Democratic ranks. Hence the Democrats in the New York Legislature have signed a petition addressed to the Democratic Senators at Washington asking for Robertson's confirmation. The chance of a Democratic victory in New York state this fall is freely canvassed in Democratic circles with a strong belief that the state can be carried. Nor is this surprising. Democratic victories in the state are usually won on a light vote, and the vote the year after presidential elections is always light. In addition, the threat is heard, that, if Robertson is confirmed, his friends must furnish the Republican majority next fall. The threat would count for nothing in a year when real issues are up, but next autumn only state officers below governor are chosen, and the state Legislature elected goes out before another federal Senator is chosen. It is in every way an off year, and a full Republican vote is unlikely in any event.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

Mr. Thomas Norbury, overseer of the carding room at the Aquidneck mill, was agreeably surprised last evening by the appearance at his home of the people under him, who brought some valuable gifts in the shape of a handsome easy chair, a picture and some fine tobacco. Mr. Norbury was considerably affected by this evidence of good will, and thanked the donors warmly. The guests staid until into the morning well pleased with their entertainment, which ended with the singing of "Shall old Acquaintance be Forgot."

ACCIDENT AT THE STATE HOUSE.

HON. WILLIAM P. SHEFFIELD, OF NEWPORT, SLIPS ON THE CARPET AND BREAKS HIS KNEE-PAN.

A serious accident occurred at the State House Friday forenoon, which will deprive the House of Representatives of the services of Hon. William P. Sheffield for the remainder of the session. Soon after the opening of the morning session, Mr. Sheffield arose from his seat and started to go to the room of the Judiciary Committee for some papers to be presented to the House. As he passed from the clerk room to the hallway, he stopped a moment to speak to Mr. Lee, of Pawtucket, and then passed on. He had taken but a step, when Mr. Lee again spoke to him, whereupon he turned suddenly, and slipped in such a manner as to twist his lame leg around and cause it severe injury. He fell to the floor and was taken up, carried into the committee room, and placed on a lounge and a surgeon sent for. He felt from the first that his knee was broken. Although suffering severe pain, he bore up bravely, and seemed quite cheerful, writing with his own hands a telegraphic despatch. Dr. D. T. Walker soon arrived, and after an examination pronounced the injury to be a fracture of the patella, or knee-pan. This is the same sort of injury before received by Mr. Sheffield, and, as the physician says, a fracture of the knee-pan never heals solidly, it is probable the fracture is precisely the same as before. The knee was bandaged and Mr. Sheffield remained in the committee-room, in charge of the members from Newport and friends, until after 2 o'clock, when he was taken to the Newport boat in the police ambulance, to go home.

This accident is unusually severe, for, by reason of Mr. Sheffield's age, and the probability that it is the same fracture as before, the chances are that his recovery will be extremely slow and tedious. Mr. Sheffield was calm, even when suffering severely. After the knee was bandaged he was in less pain. He was visited during his stay in the committee room by very many members of the Assembly, who tendered their aid and sympathy freely.

The news of the accident came over the house like a shock. He had been gone but a moment when it happened, and word came quickly back. Though none could believe it, and all hoped the news was untrue, there was a hush all over the House, and business was stopped in some mysterious manner, no one seemed to know just how. The proceedings afterwards show that there was plenty of business in readiness to be presented, but those having it in charge had no disposition to present it. All hoped for the best, and it was not until the opinion of the surgeon was known that the members would believe it. The attendants and pages of the House were placed at Mr. Sheffield's disposal, while the members all seemed anxious to assist him. Subsequently a resolution of condolence was passed by the House, and several members testified their sorrow at the accident, and their appreciation of the services of Mr. Sheffield, and of the loss to the state by being deprived of those services, especially near the close of the session. A report of these will be found in the House proceedings.

Soon after the knee was bandaged, it began to pain him intensely, and in a short time was so swollen as to necessitate the cutting of the bandage. He suffered severely until he was taken to the steamer. The members from Newport, as well as others, and Dr. Walker, remained with him while at the State House, and Dr. Walker accompanied him to Newport.—[Providence Journal.

Sir Julius Benedict, the famous London composer who, as pianist and director, accompanied Jenny Lind in her American tour in 1850, has written a biographical and critical paper on "the Swedish nightingale" for the May Scribner's. The article is said to contain interesting comparisons of her with Malibran and other contemporary artists. The accompanying portrait of Jenny Lind, engraved by Closson from an old daguerreotype, taken while she was in America, will be a striking feature of the number. At the end of his article, Sir Julius hints that he may follow this paper with another upon the subject of musical conservatories in this country.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The Rev. Dr. Parker says very aptly that whether geologists contradict Moses or not is an open question; but he is sure they contradict each other.

A Russian Bishop has commenced missionary work in Japan. This is said to be the first attempt of the kind in Japan by the Russian Church.

The little Congregational Church of Albuquerque, New Mexico, have secured lots and are trying to raise the means to build a house of worship on them. If they succeed, it will be the first Protestant house of worship in the place and the first Congregational Church in the Territory.

The first Methodist sermon in Rhode Island was preached by Jesse Lee in Charlestown, Sept. 3, 1789; the first in Newport, June 30, 1790; the first in Bristol, July 2, 1790; and the first in Providence, July 4, 1790. The first church was organized in Bristol in 1791, and the first Methodist Episcopal house of worship was erected in Warren and dedicated, Sept. 21, 1794.

Rev. Dr. Beatty, Episcopalian rector at Lawrence, Kansas, administered the sacrament as usual on Sunday, 20th inst., in acknowledged defiance of the new prohibitory law of Kansas, which forbids the use of wine at communion services and prescribes a penalty of two years in the penitentiary to the officiating clergyman. This provision of the law—if such a law has really been passed—will make a "stir" in Kansas and elsewhere.

The Watchman (Baptist) thinks that broad church theories would not produce as much peace and good will in the churches as its advocates fancy if put into practice. For instance:—"Let us suppose that fifty prominent Universalist ministers should preach the doctrine of eternal punishment next Sunday, would not these men learn before the week was out that there is punishment in this world, whatever there may be in the world to come?"

The wail that Christianity is losing its hold of the people is one which always fails to disturb us. We believe that there never was a time since it was founded when the church was so pure as now, when it exerted so much power in the world, when it was so generally respected, and when so many were in its membership as now. The world is not growing worse; it is growing better. The church is not growing weaker: it is growing stronger.—[Independent.

The California Advocate says:—"Last Sunday was a great day at the Chinese mission. Dr. Otis Gibson baptized six young Japanese men, one Chinaman, four Chinese women, and one American child. We had a love-feast, with tea and cake, an excellent spiritual feast, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The presiding elder, Rev. H. B. Hancock, was present." This is the truly Christian course toward the Orientals. Dr. Gibson is doing more to solve the Chinese problem than all the benighted politicians and bewildered economists in the land.

The American Presbyterian Mission in China is in a flourishing condition. This mission has five stations, namely, at Shanghai, Ningpo, Hangchow, Soochow and Nanking, with numerous out stations in other towns and villages. There are altogether thirteen churches. In the schools connected with the mission there are in all 404 boarders and 370 day scholars. The native church in Shanghai, which numbers 87 members, is a self supporting institution, having its own paid pastor. There are established three out stations, at each of which schools are carried on, containing in all about 70 pupils. At Shanghai alone there are 7 day schools, with an aggregate of 150 pupils, and boarding schools for youths of both sexes, containing 50 scholars. Four places of worship, capable of containing about 600 people, are occupied by the mission. There are two Sunday schools, where some 300 children receive instruction. There are two presses connected with the mission, the printing office in Peking Road (one of the largest mission presses in the world) and that from which the Child's Paper and the Chinese Illustrated News are issued by the Rev. J. M. W. Farnham.

The experiment of abolishing capital punishment has been tried in Michigan, and has proved to be a deplorable failure. One of the journals of that state goes so far as to say that "if the state does not restore capital punishment Judge Lynch will certainly be heard from." Experience not only in Michigan but in other regions has shown that the assertion that the worst use to which you can put a man is to hang him is a fallacy. The best use to which a murderer can be put is to hang him. One may feel sorry for him, but this sorrow should not be permitted to stand in the way of justice.—[Graphic.

A will of Judge Forbes, of Northampton, Mass., was returned with the plundered property of the robbed bank. It does not differ materially from the will lately proved. It contains this language relating to women, when designating who shall have charge of the library:—"At the time of a threatened revolution, when it is impossible to conjecture what social changes will occur in the future, it may be well to attend to the call of prudence, even at the expense of gallantry. I therefore direct that the committee on the library and the treasury, each and all of them, shall always be of the male sex."

Mr. Joubert, the Boer leader, in talking recently to an English correspondent, said:—"With regard to the late Gen. Colley, we are all very sorry indeed at his death. He was a man I know well, and all of us were grieved when, after the fight, news was brought that he was dead. We believed him to be an honorable, straightforward English gentleman, but he was deceived by the reports of his subordinates. They willfully did all they could to deceive him, and, acting upon these reports, he, in his turn, unwittingly misrepresented our case to the people of England. Instead of being rejoiced at his death, we were very sorry. I wish to contradict the statement that he was shot twice, the last time at close quarters. That is utterly untrue. None of our men aimed intentionally at him, and the bullet which killed him struck him in the top of the forehead and came out of the back of the head." The correspondent mentions that soon after he met Joubert some ginger brandy was brought in, and they all joined in drinking to a peaceful settlement of the question. Afterward tea and sponge cakes were brought in. On offering the correspondent a cup, Mr. Joubert said:—"I cannot offer you champagne as Sir Evelyn Wood did to us last week. We don't take such things with us when we go to fight."

The late William Beach Lawrence, who was a lawyer, a man of the largest social experience and observation, and of a temperament judicial and self poised, provided in his will in language equally explicit and emphatic that whosoever interested in, or enabled to take under his will, should oppose the probate thereof, or take any legal proceedings to invalidate any of its provisions, should be debarred from all participations in the property he left. No man knew better than Mr. Lawrence the grounds upon which wills are sometimes, and rightfully, both in law and equity, contested. But he said in and by the language he used in the terms of his testament that he was of sound and disposing mind and memory; that he was under no undue influence. The instrument in itself disclosed so much. Then, what he says, and as coming from one so capable of instructing it is entitled to careful consideration, is, that no real nor fancied expectation of making a jester will for the testator than he has lawfully and deliberately made for himself ought to be encouraged. "The ruinous consequences of litigation to all concerned in the case of wills," to which Mr. Lawrence bears testimony, is a matter of common knowledge, and it is by no means confined in many cases to the merely pecuniary detriment. It would be well if all who have estates to leave would dispose of them in unambiguous terms when in sound physical and mental health. It would also be well for the parties concerned, as for the public good, that the internal affairs of families should not be unnecessarily exposed to the public gaze. We are not now alluding to this especial case; but there have been occasions where the contestants over a will have done great and irremediable injury to the memory of those from whom they derived their only wealth.—[Providence Journal.

PRINCE WILLIAM AND HIS BRIDE.

In leading to the altar his bride-elect Prince William of Germany is known to be following the simple dictates of his heart; a moment's reflection, indeed, will serve to dispel the slightest notion of his meditating a marriage of convenience. The origin of the attachment between the prince and princess may probably be traced to a certain hunting party invited not so very long ago to Castle Primkenau, the seat of the Augustenburg family in Silesia, of which the prince was a favored member. On the 2d of June last, six months after the death of the Duke of Augustenburg, the princely pair about to be wedded were ceremoniously betrothed (a form and contract of greater importance in Germany than in England) at Castle Babelsberg, the Emperor's beautiful country seat on the wooded heights of the near Potsdam, in presence of the heads of the royal family of Prussia and of Schleswig-Holstein Sonderburg-Augustenburg. All the Emperor's court was there, too, including Prince Bismarck, who, since this, does not seem to have deemed any public or private ceremony or reception sufficiently attractive to lure him from the social solitude he so much delights in. In the interval Princess Augusta Victoria has passed some considerable time in England, while the Emperor has once or twice granted his grandson leave of absence in strict military form to fly over to Cumberland Lodge on a visit to his bride.

Prince William has his full share of the immense popularity of his house, and the numbers of costly wedding presents and congratulatory addresses that have poured in here from all directions, together with the enthusiastic reception which welcomed the public entry of his bride, show that his fellow-countrymen approve the step he is taking, and that they are also resolved to extend their sympathy and their welcome to the fair elect of his heart.—[Berlin cor. London Times.

Mr. William D. Howells wrote a letter to the children in one of the schools of Jefferson, O., last week, referring to their purpose to make his life and works the subject of literary study. In it he said:—

"As you get on in the forties you will understand that life is chiefly what life has been, and that an author is merely one who has had the fortune to remember more of it than other men. A good many wise critics will tell you that writing is inventing; but I know better than that. It is only remembering. And I want to whisper to you that a great many thoughts, feelings and ideas in my books are those which I remember to have had in Jefferson when I was a boy there. By and by you will all be authors, or rather you will realize that you have been authors as you set down for the printed page or for the circle of your own fireside the history of your life. I hope that history will be for each of you a true and sweet and good one, without harm for any living soul in it, and with help to all who come to know it."

The Countess of Caithness, wife of the nobleman who has just died at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, is living between Nice and Cannes in very sumptuous style. Her diamonds are of immense value. She married the late Earl for his title, and he married her for her wealth. They have lived separate, and she recently sued for divorce, presenting a bill of offences which created much gossip and scandal in London. The case did not come to trial. Public opinion was entirely on the Earl's side.

There is one sure way to avoid trichinosis, and that is not to eat pork, ham and sausage. There is another way which is almost as safe, and that is to have such articles, if they must be eaten, thoroughly cooked. Late experience has taught some sharp lessons on the subject, and brings afresh to the mind that there was a world of wisdom in the teaching of the old Hebrew lawgivers which in modern times has sometimes been lost sight of.

Vennor predicts his weather for a year ahead simply by observing his cat. When he pinches her tail in the door-jam "the spring will be early;" he applies a red hot poker to her nose and "the spring will be backward;" when she is out in the woodshed making eyes at a Thomas cat it is a sign of a squall followed by a hailstorm. The next day when he goes out in the yard to pick up his bootjacks, carpet bags and old hair brushes it indicates clearing weather. If the cat comes in next day with her tail down he predicts that the fall will be in knocked-ober.

A London dispatch of Friday says:—The principal transaction in the clubs yesterday was the backing of Mr. Lorillard's Iroquois for the Two Thousand Guineas, at 500 to 25, followed by fifteen fifties. The horse was backed at 4 to 1 for a place, and was taken freely. The same horse has been backed at 50 to 1 for the City and Suburban several times; but Barrett is accepted as the best of Lorillard's lot. For the same race Mr. Keene's Foxhall is quiet in the market, although progressing favorably.

The Rev. Abiel Silver, who a few days since met with a sad accidental death, had prepared a sermon (his last work, as it turned out) to preach to his congregation in the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian) Church, at the corner of St. James and Regent streets, tomorrow morning. On that day he would have reached the ripe age of 84 years, and the holy supper was to have been administered by him. The hand is now cold in death, but the sermon was with him when he died, and although discolored by water yet is legible. The Rev. D. V. Bowen, the associate minister of the same church, will read this sermon tomorrow at services at 10½ A. M. The occasion will be an interesting one from the circumstances of the case.—[Advertiser.

IDA LEWIS CAN'T SWIM.—It is a matter of some astonishment to many persons that Miss Ida Lewis, the heroine of Newport waters, cannot swim, and yet has saved such a number of lives. The secret of her success is understanding the peculiar and dangerous currents in the vicinity of the lighthouse, and the management of her boat so the drowning man cannot grasp it on either side which might swamp it. Miss Lewis has a stroke of the oar entirely her own, and by her skill with it has succeeded in rescuing more lives than any of the strong swimmers among the boatmen of her locality.—[N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Ireland is governed by an army of 26,580 officers and men, with seventy-two guns. This force occupies every available barrack, workhouse, jail, or other public building, and exceeds the number massed on Irish soil during the Fenian rising, says the Dublin correspondent of the New York Herald. This must be very expensive coercion, and therefore as an economic measure it would pay for Great Britain to offer an extremely liberal land law to the disaffected Irish population.

ON A SUN-DIAL.

[For Dr. Henry I. Bowditch.]

With warning hand I mark Time's rapid flight
From Life's glad morning to its solemn night;
Yet, through the clear dear God's love, I also show
There's light above me by the shade below.

A SAD SCENE.

At the investigation of the Seawanhaka disaster, Mrs. Mary E. Gray, who was a passenger on the boat, in a tremulous voice described the scene at the burning of the Seawanhaka and how she had passed her baby out of the cabin window to a gentleman, which was the last she saw of it alive. Witness said that she then climbed out of the cabin window and looked about for the gentleman to whom she handed her baby, but they were nowhere to be seen. She jumped overboard and caught hold of a woman who had on a life preserver, clinging to her until they were both taken from the water. Mr. Walker R. Gray, the husband of the witness, testified that after searching one place and another he found his baby at the Morgue.

Guiteau in a sudden access of fervor remarked:—"How wonderful the ways of Providence! Everything is foreseen: each month has its proper growth: Potatoes, oats, beans, asparagus, peas, always something new. When one thing goes the other comes. As soon as the season for fruits has passed the season of preserves and jelly arrives!"

It is said that Maggie Mitchell would have long ago retired from the stage comfortably fixed for life only that she owned so much land around Long Branch that she could not carry it without resorting to other means, so she went back to the stage in order to save her land. She lost $40,000 or $50,000.

Kills the Pleasure.

Illness in the house affects the whole family in some manner. When the sickness is serious the children's laughter must be hushed, footsteps must be softened, all goes sadly and wrong. Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" stands in your doorway and says to sickness: "Keep out!" It will cost you only a dollar to put the sentinel on duty, and for his faithfulness thousands can vouch. Ask your druggist or write to the doctor at Rondout, N. Y.

Another Side of it.

"Now, Miss Gray, we have missed our car, and have a long walk before us, clear to Lincoln Park, so I am going to take the opportunity to tell you the story I spoke of before, for I don't want you to think that No. 21 is haunted only by ghostly memories. Well, to begin with, one dreary, rainy night, there was a ring at the bell after everybody had gone to bed, so I threw on my wrapper and went down myself, thinking it must be a telegram. But when I opened the door there stood the queerest looking-man, tall and big, and my, oh, my! what great hands and feet he did have, and such a shock of sandy, bristling hair; a freckled face, and the most comical nose I ever saw. And you would have laughed to hear his voice—such a funny one. His only baggage was a thin old carpet-sack and a cotton umbrella.

"'Well, how d'ye do?" said he. 'Be you the landlady?'"

"'Wal,' says he, 'I did put up at the tavern, and was getting ready to roost, when they said they'd charge me $3 a day, and I jest thought, 'fore I'd pay it for them gimcracks and statters and dishes, that yer grandmother couldn't tell what's made of, I'd set on the fence all night, though they mostly be made with pints on top in these parts. Naow, kin you give me pork and beans and sensible grub for a fair price?'"

"I think so; anywhere from $4 to $8 a week, according to accommodations," says I.

"That'll do," says he; "let's squint around."

No. 21 happened to be the only vacant room, so I showed him that, and told him it was the highest priced room in the house, but he said it would do, and sat down in the best chair, and soaked it through from his rain-dripping clothes, ruining it in five minutes. He looked so suspicious that I made him pay in advance, and then I saw him open the lean carpet bag and take out a wooden boot jack, then I left him alone in his glory.

Next morning he appeared at the table with that irresistible hair flerier than ever, now that it was dry, and the amount he ate would have run a steamboat.

I saw the young gents smile at each other, and the older ones looked amused, and I trembled for the poor fellow. The only lady boarder I had was a Miss Birch—a seamstress on the fourth floor—and without meaning her any harm, I must say she was the homeliest creature that ever offended my two eyes, and as good as she was ugly. And the new boarder—Barnabas Capstack, his name was—no sooner saw her than he seemed to fall in love with her. Why, the very first day, when he "reckoned he'd walk down to the cross-roads a spell," he brought her five cents worth of peanuts, and from that time on his attentions were untiring. He was always bringing her things, candy, illustrated papers, fruit, ribbons, cheap jewelry, and once a yellow dress pattern. He asked her to go to every entertainment that he heard of and she always refused, but that made no difference. On the 4th of February he sent her thirteen valentines, all directed in the same hand. And I really think it was on her account solely that he staid so long, as the other boarders made it so unpleasant for him. There's no stopping young gents when they get started with their jokes. There were the two in 24 1-2, one in 25, those up in 30, and some from the fourth floor that spent their winter in tormenting poor Mr. Capstack.

They would fill his pitcher with kerosene, and he would wash his face in it, and then come to me and say that the gas was certainly leaking in his room, it smelt so strong. They cut white horse hairs over his bed in little fine bits, and these stung like 1000 mosquitoes, if you don't know it. Then the poor fellow would come down in the morning with little sores over his face, and, I suppose, the rest of him, where he'd scratched the skin off. They would sew up his clothes and exchange his pantaloons for a pair that wouldn't reach his blue socks, but he'd tie them down like the Brother Jonathan he was, and remark that "that air goods kinder shrinks." And they even played the old saups trick on him—took him out to Burnham woods and left him holding a candle till they should drive up the gang. And he held up the candle until it burnt down to some powder in the end and exploded; and the way he came galloping down Eagle street about 4 o'clock in the morning, suggested that he was scared, to say the least.

But, my! he took it all so patiently, and was so good humored, and was so faithful to his true love, and he paid his board so very promptly, that I could not help liking the poor fellow.

He never gave much account of himself. He said that he had got tired of farming, and he could find something to do in the city, and was employed in a big wholesale house down on Broad street. So he lived on with us for a number of months, bearing all the jokes patiently, drinking castor oil in his glass of milk, salt in his coffee, soap in his pie, and, I suppose, a thousand other things that I never knew of, and grew more and more devoted to Miss Birch the more she snubbed him, until one day she came into my room, and I know she had something to say by her looks, so I let her talk on, and finally she says:—

"Mrs. Crompton, I do believe I'll have to marry that fellow to get rid of him."

"Well," says I, "that's a sensible way, for it's a sure one. Just marry him, and he'll trouble you little after that, I'll warrant. But, bless you, how she flew up!

"Mrs. Crompton," says she, "I didn't expect to be insulted by you. You know as well as I do that Barnabas is above the common run. He's so faithful and true. Why, he asked me to marry him four times last week, and five times this, and last night he sent up the loveliest note along with a quart of oysters and a pair of shoes, and now if you think he is going to neglect me like other men, you're very much mistaken!" and then she bounced out of the room, and wouldn't come back for a week, and I learned, my dear, not to take a woman at her word.

One night, a few months later, in came Barnabas, bristles up, and flaming necktie, and he seemed to have something to say. He wiggled and squirmed on his chair, cleared his throat, stared at the pictures and the ceiling, upset a vase of flowers on the table (by the way, he was the most destructive creature I ever saw, always spilling, tearing, breaking things, blundering over delicate chairs, and putting his foot through screens), and this evening he did more damage than usual. When the hours had passed until after 11, and still he sat, I told him I never sat up very late, I guessed I should have to ask him to leave. But he only fidgeted the more, and at last I thought he was choking; his face got fairly purple.

"Miss Compton," he says, the Bible says, ye know, and I thought being as how ye was once thar yeself, that maybe it wouldn't be too much to ask yer to be so kind as to step down. It's at the brown church of a Tuesday morning, ye know, and if you'll be there 'bout 9 o'clock we'll be much pleased," and with that he bolted through the door and was gone.

Of course, it got out through the house, and Monday night presents from the boarders began to arrive. Such loads and loads of things. I went up and there stood Barnabas and his bride in the midst unspeaking. There were brooms, scrub-brushes, curry-combs, bedbug poison, boot-jacks, soap enough for a century, a canned cat, a rolling-pin and potter tied together with ribbons and labelled, "Firearms—dangerous," a barrel of beans, hair oil and goodness knows what else.

Miss Birch was offended, and Barnabas said:—"Never mind, Nanna, them things is all useful articles, and will come mighty handy in our shanty. And, Miss Compton, if you will kindly say to the boarders that we have got a shanty down on a cross-road quite a step from here, and we'll be happy to see 'em thar tomorrow night, I'll be obliged to yo. I'll send up a waggon to take 'em down, soon' they've been so handsome."

Next morning I went down to see them married, and now when Barnabas had his hair oiled down to his head, and his new suit on, he was quite a gentleman in appearance, though one of the 42s did say something about flour bags when he saw his white gloves. And Miss Birch was as trim and neat as a pin, as she always was, and made a very good appearance.

When the ceremony was over they went out and got into a carriage, and were driven away. That night we were all ready, and I saw that the young gents were in for some fun, when a row of carriages—nice ones—drew up at the door, and a driver gave me a queer note from Barnabas and Mrs. Capstack. "He is going to be extravagant for once, I thought, but I knew his turn and wasn't surprised." But when we drew up at the beautiful gray stone house on the finest part of State street, I was amazed. I knew there must be some mistake; so I ran up the steps and into the vestibule, where I could see a vista of lovely rooms opening together, with rich, soft carpets and beautiful furniture, looking through the glass door. But there was Barnabas, sure enough, smashing over the loveliest Apollo Belvidere in his haste, coming to open the door himself. And we filed in and sat down, but we hadn't a word to say. And to think of the elegant supper from Murray's and the music and lights, and poor Mr. Capstack rushing around and cracking his shins against the furniture in his efforts to entertain us. It was too much for gravity.

And don't you think all this time he'd been a partner in the wholesale house, and some of those very gents are his clerks now that abused him so! And he is the most devoted husband, and Mrs. Capstack manages her house as nicely as if she'd been born in it.

But, my dear, never trust appearances; it is a deceitful world.

PUBLIC LAWS OF RHODE ISLAND.

Passed at the January Session, 1881.

CHAPTER 849.

AN ACT in addition to and in amendment of Chapter 83 of the General Statutes, "Of Dogs."

[Passed March 29, 1881.]

It is enacted by the General Assembly as follows:

SECTION 1. All the duties now imposed upon the City Clerk of the city of Newport by Chapter 83 of the General Statutes, and all the powers conferred upon said city clerk by said chapter, are hereby imposed upon and conferred upon the City Marshal of said city of Newport.

SEC. 2. So much of Section 15 of said Chapter 83 as requires the posting of the lists of licensed and unlicensed dogs with the names of the owners or keepers thereof, is hereby declared to be inoperative and of no effect in said city of Newport.

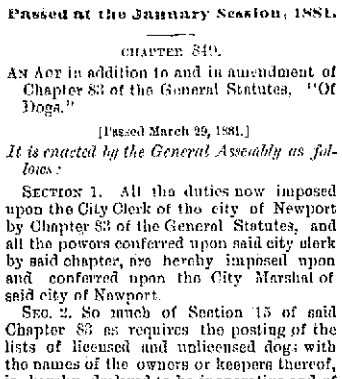

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy.
Witness: JOSHUA M. ADDEMAN,
Secretary of State.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

"You see, I was going up in the Woodward avenue car," explained the old man, "and a passenger got in and trod on my awful corns. I was so shocked and surprised that I yelled out:—'Damn it!' before I could check myself. Every woman in the car rose up in horror, and two or three of the men said I ought to be run out. Well, the next night I was at the theatre and one actor said 'damn you!' and every woman giggled. Then another said 'damn me!' and every woman laughed. Then a third said 'damn her!' and he brought down the house. How it comes about I don't know, but it seems to make a heap of difference where you are when you kick an old hat with a stone under it."

THE GREAT
KIDNEY REGULATOR AND DIURETIC.

Kidnegen is highly recommended and unsurpassed for Weak or Foul Kidneys, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, Loss of Energy, Nervous Debility, or any obstructions arising from Kidney or Bladder Diseases. Also for Yellow Fever, Blood and Kidney Poisoning, in infected malarial sections.

By the distillation of a Forest Leaf with Juniper Berries and Barley Malt we have discovered Kidnegen, which acts specifically on the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, removing deposits in the Bladder and straining, smarting, heat or irritation in the water passages, giving them strength, vigor and causing a healthy color and easy flow of urine. It can be taken at all times, in all climates without injury to the system. Unlike any other preparation for Kidney difficulties it has a very pleasant and agreeable taste and flavor. It contains positive diuretic properties and will not nauseate. Ladies especially will like it, and gentlemen will find Kidnegen the best Kidney Tonic ever used!

Notice.—Each bottle bears the signature of Lawrence & Martin, also a proprietary government stamp, which permits Kidnegen to be sold (without license) by Druggists, Grocers and other persons everywhere. Put up in quart size bottles for general and family use. If not found at your druggists or grocers, we will send a bottle prepaid to the nearest express office to you.

SUPERIOR NUTRITION THE LIFE.
IMPERIAL GRANUM
REGISTERED JUNE 5, 1877.
THE GREAT
MEDICINAL FOOD

THE SALVATOR FOR INVALIDS AND THE AGED.

AN INCOMPARABLE ALIMENT FOR THE GROWTH AND PROTECTION OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN.

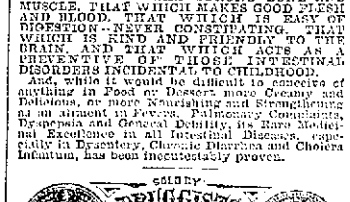

A SUPERIOR NUTRITIVE IN CONTINUED FEVERS, AND A RELIABLE REMEDIAL AGENT IN ALL DISEASES OF THE STOMACH AND INTESTINES.

THIS justly celebrated Dietetic Preparation is, in composition, principally the GLUTEN derived from the WHITE WINTER FLINT WHEAT CEREAL, a solid extract, the invention of an eminent Chemist. It has not only been highly recommended but certified to by a large number of Chemists and Physicians—representing a very high degree of medical science—as the SAFEST, MOST ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE FOOD FOR THE GROWTH AND PROTECTION OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN, and for MOTHERS lacking sufficient nourishment for their offspring.

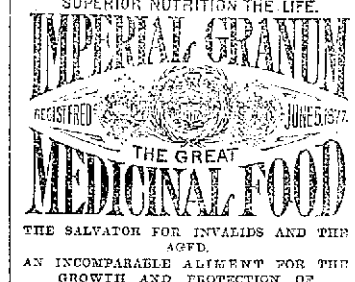

Unlike those preparations made from animal or vinous matter, which are liable to stimulate the brain and irritate the digestive organs, it embraces in its elementary composition—

THAT WHICH MAKES STRONG BONE AND MUSCLE, THAT WHICH MAKES GOOD FLESH AND BLOOD. THAT WHICH IS EASY OF DIGESTION—NEVER CONSTIPATING. THAT WHICH IS KIND AND FRIENDLY TO THE BRAIN, AND THAT WHICH ACTS AS A PREVENTIVE OF THOSE INTESTINAL DISORDERS INCIDENTAL TO CHILDHOOD.

And, while it would be difficult to conceive of anything in Food or Dessert more Creamy and Delicious, or more Nourishing and Strengthening as an ailment in Fevers, Pulmonary Complaints, Dyspepsia and General Debility, its Rare Medicinal Excellence in all Intestinal Diseases, especially in Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhœa and Cholera Infantum, has been incontestably proven.

Put up in Quart-Size Bottles for Family Use.

Scientifically prepared of Balsam Tolu, Crystallized Rock Candy, Old Rye, and other tonics.
